

Zamashiba Mkhwanazi

ERD ASSIGNMENT

06/09/2026

Question 1

- Customer
- Product
- Order
- Payment
- Delivery
- Category
- Supplier
- Address

Question 2

- Customer ID
- Product ID
- Order ID
- Payment ID
- Delivery ID
- Category ID
- Supplier ID
- Address ID

Question 3

- Customer ID in address entity
- Customer ID in order entity
- Order ID in payment entity
- Category ID in product entity
- Supplier ID in product entity
- Address ID in delivery entity

Question 4

- Customer and address have a one-to-many relationship, as a customer can have multiple delivery addresses
- Customer and order have a one-to-many relationship, as a customer can have many different orders
- Order and payment will have a one-to-one relationship, because single order will have only one payment
- Order and deliver have a one-to-one relationship, as one order will have one delivery
- Product and category have a one-to-one relationship, every product belonging to one category
- Product and supplier have a one-to-one relationship, every product is supplied by one supplier
- Order and product have a many to many relationship, where an order can have many products and a product can be found in many orders. There must be a junction to break the many-to-many relationship.

Question 5

